Woman charged in Baseline Road murder of her boyfriend

Jordan Wilcox
Assistant Publisher

"I just shot my boyfriend," 44-year-old Jennifer Dana Moore told 911 dispatchers just after 10 p.m. Wednesday, April 22, while calling to report the shooting inside her home

Deputies with the Allegan County Sheriff's Office were promptly dispatched to Moore's residence just north of the Allegan–Van Buren County line on East Baseline Road near Hillside Drive and Baseline Lake. Inside, deputies found her boyfriend, 52-year-old Joseph Wayne Worley, deceased from a single gunshot wound to the back of his head.

Court records revealed additional details about the incident. When deputies first arrived, Moore was sitting on the front porch but went back inside as they approached. She was later seen standing at a window, crying hysterically and repeatedly telling deputies, "I shot him" and "I killed him."

Officers observed a person's feet through the window as Moore stood over the body and ordered her to exit the home, which she did. Deputies then entered and located Worley's body.

In a later interview with detectives, Moore acknowledged that she and Worley had argued but said she did not intend to shoot him.

According to court documents, the couple had just returned home from dinner in Paw Paw when an argument began. Moore said she made a comment that upset Worley, prompting him to lock himself in a bedroom. After he opened the door, she picked up a revolver that had been in the room and pointed it at him as he walked toward the kitchen. She then made what she described as a "Doc Holliday"-style motion with the gun to simulate a shot, but the firearm accidentally discharged.

The court documents also noted that investigators noticed a bullet hole in the bedroom television.

Moore was located at the scene and immediately taken into custody. Investigators with the sheriff's office launched a homicide investigation, citing apparent domestic issues.

On Monday, April 27, Moore appeared via video before Allegan County's 57th District Court Magistrate Meredith Biedler for arraignment on one felony count of open murder.

44-year-old Jennifer Moore's mugshot after she was charged with one felony count of open murder in the death of her boyfriend.

Her attorney waived the formal reading of the complaint and argued for her release on bond, stating that she has family in the Kalamazoo area that she can stay with and no history of violent criminal offenses.

However, Allegan County Chief Assistant Prosecutor Jessica Winsemius vehemently opposed the request, arguing that there is a "very, very serious flight risk for this individual, who is from the state of Virginia, has no permanent housing here in the area, and was living in a rental at the time."

Winsemius also stated that Moore is currently on suicide watch at the county jail.

Following those arguments, Moore asked Magistrate Biedler if she could speak, but the request was denied.

Biedler then ruled from the bench: "This is a very serious charge, one of the most serious there is. Given the lack of ties to the community that Ms. Moore has, the danger she poses to both herself and the community, and the flight risk she presents, bond is going to be denied."

In an interview with WOOD-TV News 8, neighbors said the couple had recently moved into the rental home.

Moore is scheduled to return to court for a probable cause conference on May 7 before Judge Skocelas and a preliminary examination on May 12 before Judge Burnett.

The Allegan County Sheriff's Office was assisted in the investigation by the Allegan City Police Department, Michigan State Police, Bloomingdale Fire Department, Life EMS, the Michigan State Police Crime Lab, and the Allegan County Medical Examiner's Office.

Jordan Wilcox

On the morning of April 23, Scotland resident Ian Catterall was walking his dog Rany along a beach in Ayr, Scotland, when he saw a photo on the ground of four individuals standing outside a home. When he flipped it over, the back indicated that it was taken on July 20, 1970, at Lyle Leonard's house in Paw Paw, "20 miles from Kalamazoo, Michigan."

After doing some research, Catterall contacted both the Courier-Leader newspaper and the Paw Paw District Library (PPDL) for help in determining how the photograph ended up so far from its origin after so many years.

While neither organization was able to determine how the photo reached Scotland, the PPDL was able to provide some background on Lyle Leonard. According to library records, Leonard was born in Paw Paw on June 6, 1906, graduated from Paw Paw High School in 1924, and died on April 13, 1988. Over the course of his life, he also lived in Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, and Lake Wales, Florida.

As of press time Tuesday morning, the mystery remains unsolved, though all parties involved remain interested in finding answers. Anyone with information about the picture or how it may have traveled to Scotland is asked to contact Wilcox Newspapers at wilcox-newspapers@gmail.com or the PPDL at 269-657-3800.

Paw Paw Robotics team receives police escort as team travels to World Championships

PAW PAW - The streets of Paw Paw were filled Monday afternoon, April 27, with flashing lights and school spirit as the community gathered to send its local innovators off to the world stage. A police escort of Village of Paw Paw and Van Buren County Sheriff's Office led the students of 2Paw Robotics (Team 5462) through the heart of downtown toward Interstate-94.

According to Ben Tomlinson, President, 2Paw Robotics (Team 5462), the procession marked a triumphant departure for the team, which recently secured its first qualification for the FIRST World Championships since 2022 following a powerhouse performance at the Michigan State Championships at Saginaw Valley State University.

"Qualifying for the world stage is no small feat. The FIRST Robotics Competition (FRC) is a massive international circuit, with nearly 4,000 teams competing worldwide. For 2Paw Robotics to emerge from that global pool and secure a ticket to the championships in Houston, Texas, is a testament to the students' technical mastery and season-long dedication," said Tomlinson.

While 2Paw Robotics was the focus of Monday's local celebration, they are part of a widespread surge in STEM excellence across the region. Several other West Michigan teams also earned their spot at the World Championships this year, proving the area is a competitive hub for young engineers. Qualifying neighbors include teams from: Kalamazoo (2 teams), Mattawan, Hopkins, Bridgman, St. Joseph, Lakeshore, and Wayland.

"The police-led motorcade served as a final community salute to the months of technical design, programming, and troubleshooting that led these students to the world rankings.

"For the Paw Paw community, the send-off was a chance to cheer on a group of students who have spent the season proving that hard work and technical excellence can take a local team all the way to a global arena," said Tomlinson.

Gobles home destroyed by fire

Gobles remained at the scene and cleared just before 8 p.m., according to Richardson. No injuries were reported. The fire remains under investigation.

Michigan Flywheelers Museum hosts annual Farm History Day

Pat Ingalls

By James Windell

One of the signature events put on by the Michigan Flywheelers Museum every year is Farm History Day – a day when the early 20th-century rural life is honored with hands-on, immersive experiences designed especially for students and families.

"Farm History Day started as a way we could promote education and interest in early farm life," explains Patrick Ingalls, Michigan Flywheelers Museum president. He says the event was created to give younger generations a "boots-on-the-ground" understanding of early farm life, offering experiences that textbooks simply can't replicate. According to Ingalls, the event was specifically designed to promote interest in farm life, "But we also didn't want to charge admission so that schools could bring students without worrying about funds for the trip."

Begun 26 years ago, the event has evolved into a major regional educational activity drawing thousands of students annually. Over the years, it has expanded its hands-on activities to keep early farm life engaging for new generations. Among the activities available for young people are candle dipping, tin punching, corn grinding and shelling, shaving wood, and cross-cut sawing. Students can also watch blacksmithing demonstrations and a sawmill and shingle mill in operation.

"These activities help participants understand the physical labor and craftsmanship that shaped rural communities," Ingalls says.

Ingalls adds that Farm History Day has hosted up to 2,300 kids plus staff on this special day each May. Visitors will be able to explore Olde Town – the museum's 1920s replica village with places like Pearl's Millinery Shop and Over The Hill Forge.

The Michigan Flywheelers Museum is a non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation of antique gas engines, tractors, and early farm machinery. Located at 06285 68th Street, South Haven, it covers 83 acres and now has 22 buildings that were built on-site or moved in. The organization is run entirely by volunteers, including Ingalls. Their mission is to preserve and promote restoration of antique engines and tractors.

Farm History Day occurs on Friday, May 8, 2026, from 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. The event is open to the public and offered free of charge to all schools and homeschooled groups.

For more information or to register a large school group, visit www.michiganflywheelers.org or email michiganflywheelers@yahoo.com.

Rosie the Riveter visits Maritime Museum

By James Windell

Rosie the Riveter's image – popularized by the 1942 We Can Do It! poster – captured the spirit of determination, patriotism, and resilience that defined women during World War II.

Rosie the Riveter stands as a cultural icon representing the millions of American women who entered industrial and military-support roles during World War II. When men left for military service, women stepped into factories, shipyards, and aviation plants, proving their capability in skilled, technical, and physically demanding jobs.

The Michigan Maritime Museum is presenting Jeannette Gutierrez of the Michigan Rosies as she talks about women's important contribution to Allied Victory in World War II with a special focus on Michigan's maritime activities. The lecture, entitled "Rosie the Riveter and Beyond: How Women Helped Win WWII," will take place on Thursday, April 30, 2026 at the Michigan Maritime Museum.

Jeannette Gutierrez, a speaker, journalist and retired advertising professional, is executive director of the Michigan Rosies, a nonprofit organization dedicated to honoring the Rosies of WWII and preserving their legacy.

In a recent interview, Gutierrez said that in her talk she will focus on all of the ways that women helped win WWII.

"There were so many ways that women helped," she said. "They were war production workers, they replaced men in essential civilian jobs, they did volunteer work, and they were allowed to join the armed forces for the first time. There were also a lot of women who were national influencers who helped the war effort by selling war bonds. But they all pitched in to help."

She also said that in her talk at the Museum she will delve into some of the ways in which Michigan's special geography and the waterways helped win the war. "Women worked in ship building companies in Michigan and they were important in the war effort by helping to bring ore and timber through the Soo Locks to the war production plants," she said.

Gutierrez was asked how she got involved in preserving the legacy of Rosies.

"I got involved years ago when I was worked in advertising," she explained. "As part of a campaign launch event for a client, some real WWII Rosie the Riveters were invited to be a part of it and they were all 89 or 90 years old then. I just fell in love with these women and I started to look into what was being done to preserve their history. Then, I got involved as a volunteer. But when I retired, it was became my work and my calling."

She founded Michigan Rosies, an organization, she said, whose focus is on education and on community engagement and preserving the legacy of these women from WWII.

She said it is important that the Rosies legacy be preserved. "First of all, WWII was the deadliest conflict in human history with over 30 nations involved and battles were fought on three continents," she said. "The world was mobilized for this conflict and women were mobilized to pitch in and win this war. It was a time of great community in our nation."

The work of the many Rosie's during the war, she said, should be remembered and harkened back to as we try to recapture that spirit. What the women did helped to change their place in our society.

"It opened doors for women and men and it opened doors for people of color," she said. "It caused people to rethink our society and rethink our definition of who's a patriotic American and who is able to do what jobs. Because women were needed for war work with men gone, they stepped up to do the work and they proved that we could do it."

"Rosie the Riveter and Beyond: How Women Helped Win WWII," is made possible thanks to the Nielsen-Wells Grant Fund and Mike and Sue Smith. The lecture will take place on Thursday, April 30, 2026 at the Michigan Maritime Museum, 260 Dyckman Avenue, South Haven. Tickets are free for Museum members and $10 for non-members. Doors open at 6:00 pm. For more information, visit the Museum's website at https: //michiganmaritimemuseum.org/events/

Senior Services announces Path Forward

Diane Rigozzi

By James Windell

Speaking at a press conference at the South Haven Senior Services Center, Executive Director Diane Rigozzi noted how rapidly and extensively Senior Services of Van Buren County has grown.

"South Haven City activities increased from 7,259 in the years 2016 to 2019," she said, "but then in the three years after moving into our new building activities rose to about 202,000, with the number of members rising from 402 to 1,850."

Also speaking at the press conference was 38th District State Representative Joey Andrews, who serves on the Advisory Committee for Senior Services. He emphasized how community "focal points" like the South Haven Senior Services center improve access to services. Andrews praised Van Buren County Senior Services as a regional model and highlighted the importance of community connection in a time of increasing isolation.

South Haven's City Manager Kate Hosier in her remarks thanked Senior Services leadership, volunteers, and the Board. She noted the value of Senior Services goes beyond rides, meals, and equipment extending to fellowship and community. Hosier also shared that her own family benefited from receiving equipment and meals.

Senior Services Special Project Coordinator Linda Teeter was the featured speaker at the press conference. She told the audience that a community "Path Forward Committee" was formed to build on current momentum at Senior Services.

"The organization has a remaining mortgage balance of nearly $2 million, and the Path Forward Committee set a goal to retire the debt in two years," Teeter said.

She said that priorities for Senior Services and the Path Forward Committee are to create a plan to retire the balance due on the South Haven Senior Center and the Porter Senior Center building renovation projects. Also, she said that the committee's plan is to raise funds to remodel the South Haven's center's kitchen. The approximate cost for this remodeling project would be about $250,000. In addition, the committee will create a plan to raise funds for a new senior center serving Gobles, Bloomingdale and Grand Junction. Finally, Teeter announced that the committee will develop a plan to raise funds to expand the center serving Covert Township.

Teeter asked the attendees to support the campaign by hosting home gatherings, donating, and encouraging friends, family, neighbors and businesses to donate. The ask was positioned as a two-year focus to "adopt" Senior Services in charitable giving, aiming toward a future "mortgage-burning party." Teeter said that meals, activities, and programs will continue during the fundraising campaign.

"It was important to get our priorities straight as we look to the future," Rigozzi said after the meeting. "Our future fundraisers will be focused on the priorities laid out by Linda Teeter."

For instance, Rigozzi said at the April 27, 2026, press briefing that Senior Services has grown from 7 to 10 centers across the county and has now begun serving seniors in Casco Township in Allegan County. She pointed out that comparisons for the three years before moving into the current building in South Haven versus the three years after shows how much Senior Services has expanded.

County to purchase Decatur farmland through MDARD grant

DECATUR - A total of 220 acres of farmland near Decatur will be kept for agricultural use in perpetuity now that Van Buren County has been awarded a $312,000 Agricultural Preservation Fund grant by the Michigan Department of Agriculture and Rural Development, according to a recent announcement from MDARD.

Van Buren County Community Services Director Lisa Ransler said the grant will be used to purchase the development rights to Druskovich Farms in Hamilton Township. According to Ransler, under this arrangement, the county will own the development rights to the property while the Druskovich family will retain ownership of the land, but with an easement keeping it as agricultural.

According to Ransler, if the land was on the market today, it would see a price of approximately $438,000, Ransler said the difference between the current value and the farming value is about $312,000.

According to Ransler, Druskovich committed a 30 percent match to the grant ($131,400).

Ransler said under the farmland preservation program, grant funding can cover up to 75 percent of the cost of purchasing development rights, with local governments and the landowner contributing the rest.

The Michigan Department of Agriculture and Rural Development awarded more than $2 million in grants to protect farmland around the state, with Van Buren County named among the recipients.

MDARD recently announced the funding through the Agricultural Preservation Fund, which helps local governments purchase development rights and permanently preserve farmland. In total, about 744 acres across seven communities will be protected.

Van Buren County was the only recipient in Southwest Michigan.

Under the farmland preservation program, grant funding can cover up to 75 percent of the cost of purchasing development rights, with local governments and landowners contributing the rest. Once secured, those conservation easements ensure the land remains dedicated to agriculture for current and future owners.

MDARD Director Tim Boring said the program is designed to prevent farmland from being converted to other uses while supporting Michigan's agricultural economy.

Benefit concert aids area food pantries

Jean Watson

Collection of non-perishable food items

A total of $751 was collected as well as a large selection of non-perishable food items. The funds and food items were directed and divided between six area food pantries: The Porch and Eleanor's Pantry in Paw Paw; the Community Food Pantry, Lawrence; Decatur Human Services; the Gobles-Kendall Area Ministerial Association Food Pantry, and the Mattawan Area Pantry.

Watson, a singer, violinist, recording artist, author, and speaker from southwest Michigan, brought her music and message to more than 75 people who attended the concert. Since 2003, she has been inspiring audiences around the world through her words and music. She speaks and performs frequently in the United States and Ireland where she hosts a radio show on UCB Ireland. She is also a published author with Seedbed Publishers in Franklin, TN.

Watson recently returned from tours in Southern California and Ireland. She is getting ready to release her 13th full length album next month, produced by Nashville veteran, Jonathan Crone and featuring a guest performance by Russ Taff.

When she's not recording or traveling, Watson enjoys playing violin in the Kalamazoo Symphony, spending time with her family, and riding her horse, Juniper.

Watson said following the concert, "Thanks to all who came out to the fundraiser. I love seeing the community come together to bless those in need. We were so happy to be able to give food and a nice financial gift to local food banks."

The benefit concert was held as a fundraiser for Van Buren County area food pantries. It was recently announced that the Van Buren County CROP (Communities Responding to Overcome Poverty) Hunger Walk, held for more than 40 years, would not be continued this spring by the Van Buren County CROP Hunger Walk Committee.

With separating from CROP, the committee is considering holding a future walk that will see all funds raised to be distributed to the six area food pantries.

South Haven's Cadwell runs in Boston Marathon

By James Windell

The Boston Marathon, which is run every Patriot's Day, begins in Hopkinton, Massachusetts and ends on Boylston Street in downtown Boston, near the Boston Public Library.

Running in this year's Boston Marathon on April 20, 2026, South Haven native, Will Cadwell says the Boston Marathon is his favorite marathon.

"There is so much history to it," he said a couple of days after returning from Boston. "The crowds are incredible all along the whole route. You really feel like you are part of something special when you're doing it."

Cadwell says that the energy from the people all along the way is amazing. That helped him finish number 64, out of the more than 32,000 people who participated this year, with a time just over 2 hours and 18 minutes. The winner came in just 17 minutes before him.

"That was two minutes better than my time last year," says the accountant who graduated from South Haven High School.

Can he do better?

"That's what I get asked a lot," Cadwell says. "That's the hope, anyway, because you always strive to do better. I think I'm capable of more, but I guess we'll find out."

Since he's only 28, he says that he's aware that marathon runners tend to peak in their 30s. "A lot of them peak in their early to mid-thirties," he adds. "Maybe I still have a few years of improvement left in me."

Cadwell was a cross country athlete at South Haven High school, but he says he started running in middle school. "I always just enjoyed running and I liked challenging myself to do better," he says. "Since I always preferred the longer distances to the shorter distances, that drew me to marathons."

But he explains that it's the timing in races that he likes about competitive running. "I like setting goals and having tangible proof of improvement over time," he says. "That's a big motivator for me."

Not that he needs much motivation. He said that his year around schedule is to run about 10 miles every morning, rain or shine, winter or summer. All before he heads for work as an accountant in a West Michigan CPA group.

"I just run every day," he notes. "It's really pretty simple. If you want to get better at running, you've got to run – a lot. So, that what I do; I run a lot."

He started running in marathons about 10 years ago and won one marathon, the 2021 St. Jude Rock 'n' Roll Nashville Marathon where he finished in 2 hours, 26 minutes and 45 seconds. In 2024, he finished second in the Detroit Free Press Marathon with a time of 2:21:05.

He comments that he's finished second in many marathons. "It's kind of a running joke among my friends and family," he says. "When I'm going to run a marathon, they tell me I'll probably finish second. They like to keep me humble by reminding me that I'm not a champion marathoner. But it gives me a little more motivation to get out the door and run every day."

Over 400 grams of meth seized at traffic stop

Four Kalamazoo residents are in custody after more than 400 grams of crystal methamphetamine were recovered during a traffic stop in Allegan County this past week.

On April 22, detectives with the Southwest Enforcement Team (SWET), in partnership with the Mid-Michigan Investigative Narcotics Team (MINT), conducted a narcotics trafficking investigation in Allegan and Kalamazoo Counties.

SWET is a multi-jurisdictional narcotics task force.

Deputies from the Allegan County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) made a traffic stop near US-131 and 116th Street in Martin Township.

Four suspects were in the vehicle when deputies conducted the stop, multiple of whom allegedly resisted arrest. Another suspect tried to destroy evidence by tearing packages open that contained suspected narcotics and throwing the contents into the air and on the road.

SWET said as a result of this, three deputies were exposed to potentially hazardous substances and were taken to a local hospital for evaluation.

One deputy was hurt after they were bitten by one of the suspects, and one suspect was taken to the hospital for treatment of a possible drug overdose.

According to SWET, everyone involved has been treated and released.

Investigators recovered more than 400 grams of crystal methamphetamine from the suspect vehicle.

The seizure led to the execution of a residential search warrant in the 900 block of Washington Street in Kalamazoo, where additional evidence of narcotics distribution was found.

Four Kalamazoo residents were arrested and face multiple charges, including:

- Resisting and obstructing police causing injury
- Resisting and obstructing police by attempting to destroy evidence
- Possession of methamphetamine with intent to deliver

"I am very proud of the excellent work being accomplished by the detectives with the Southwest Enforcement Team," said Allegan County Sheriff Frank Baker. "Our partnership helps to make our communities safer."

Residents are encouraged to report suspected drug activity to MSP-PROTECT@michigan.gov or leave an anonymous tip at (269) 982-8664.

If you or someone you know is seeking help for substance use, contact the Southwest Michigan Behavioral Health at 1-800-781-0353.

Let's keep data centers in industrial areas

MIKE'S MUSINGS

n PUBLISHER n

If solar panels and windmills weren't enough, the newest intrusion to our lands and quality of life is the need to grow the number of data centers in America and Michigan exponentially. And that has created a frenzy among the general public who is resisting the location of a data center near them.

It has become a hot topic at township meetings pitting board members who see the need and homeowners that demand the data center be built elsewhere. So hot that board members have resigned and residents are demanding recall in some areas.

Data centers are the quiet backbone of modern life. Every email sent, movie streamed, bank transaction processed, or GPS route calculated depends on vast networks of servers humming away somewhere out of sight. Without them, the digital economy simply doesn't function. Now that AI has many everyday uses the need for more data centers is critical. The question isn't whether we need data centers—we absolutely do. The real question is where they belong.

Too often, the answer has been "wherever land is available," including near or within residential neighborhoods. That's a mistake. While data centers may not look like traditional heavy industry, they share many of the same characteristics: constant energy demand, significant heat output, large physical footprints, and the need for round-the-clock operation. Those traits make them far better suited for industrial zones than residential ones.

For residents, the downsides are real. Data centers rely on massive cooling systems, which generate persistent noise—sometimes a low hum, sometimes a mechanical whir—that doesn't stop at night. Backup generators, tested regularly, add another layer of disruption. Increased traffic during construction and maintenance phases can strain local roads never designed for that kind of use. And while these facilities are generally safe, their sheer scale and infrastructure needs can alter the character of a neighborhood in ways homeowners didn't sign up for.

Industrial areas, on the other hand, are designed for exactly this kind of activity. They already accommodate higher energy use, heavier infrastructure, and 24/7 operations. Power grids in these zones are often more robust, reducing strain on residential supply. Noise expectations are different, and the surrounding land use is compatible with large, utilitarian buildings that prioritize function over aesthetics.

There's also a planning advantage. Concentrating data centers in industrial zones allows municipalities to better manage infrastructure upgrades, from electrical substations to fiber connectivity. It creates opportunities to cluster related industries, improve efficiency, and even plan for shared cooling or energy solutions. Trying to retrofit residential areas for these needs is not only inefficient it's avoidable.

None of this is an argument against technological growth. In fact, it's the opposite. If communities want to support the expansion of cloud computing, artificial intelligence, and digital services, they need to place the infrastructure wisely. Poor siting decisions can spark backlash, slow development, and create unnecessary conflict between residents and developers.

Data centers are essential. But essential doesn't mean they belong everywhere. Like factories, warehouses, and logistics hubs, they should be located where their impact is expected, managed, and appropriate. Industrial zones aren't just an option—they're the right fit for a technology that powers our lives but doesn't need to live next door.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Reader offended by anti-American activities of left

Dear Editor,

This has been a week of retrospect. Last Sunday was the 250th anniversary of the Battles of Lexington and Concord. Who fired the first shot at Lexington is debatable and inconsequential, what is significant is that this is considered to have been the beginning of our armed struggle for independence from British rule. The impetus for this event was when the British demanded the American residents surrender all arms. These two battles were the American patriot's version of telling the British to pound sand. Roughly three months later our Declaration of Independence was adopted to initiate our American Revolution. Fifty-six men, relying on divine Providence, pledged their lives, fortunes and honor in support of this declaration.

Then yesterday we attended the annual Gold Star Family Banquet, hosted by our very own Decatur VFW post. The event is not only a fundraiser to support this most worthy organization but also provides an opportunity for us to honor these families whose loved ones made the ultimate sacrifice in defense of our nation's liberty. A Gold Star Family has experienced the loss of an immediate family member who died as a result of active-duty military service. Gold Star Families continue to serve our nation by assisting our military veterans in a variety of endeavors through our VA Hospitals as well as other supportive activities.

The nearly limitless reminders of America's exceptionalism surround us. Which is probably why those of us that appreciate and are truly humbled by our remarkable Republic are so offended and bewildered by the clueless, anti-American activities of the left.

Last night another new democrat failed in attempting to assassinate President Trump. I believe since July 2024 this is the fifth hard assassination attempt against President Trump. Of course, the radical snowflakes will blame the "bombastic Trump" for creating this violent atmosphere. So, in their embryonic minds he gets what he deserves. While the remainder of us in the adult world realize that our parents were quite correct when they taught us that "sticks and stones can break our bones but words can never hurt us".

Fact is if we were justified in dropping the hammer on someone every time we're offended our would never suffer from over population. Not to mention that only authoritarians and the simple-minded require everyone to agree with them. No, last night was one more example of the American education system and mainstream media's indoctrination and misinformation campaign against our nation. Another generation of soft, entitled yet ignorant Americans that know nothing of their nation's or our world's history. Another generation that truly believes that even with their total lack of knowledge and life experience they somehow have all the answers.

Theodore Roosevelt nailed it when he said "To educate a man in mind and not in morals is to educate a menace to society." In their arrogance, the left fails to realize that the America they are striving to create is the country our founding fathers fought to escape. Or perhaps they do realize it and the communists have succeeded in high jacking the democratic party.

I'm certain that we will shortly see reports from mainstream media that this assassination attempt, like all the others, was staged by the Trump Whitehouse. Along with other conspiratorial reports such as 9/11 was a joint U.S-Israel assault and the U.S. moon landing was filmed on a Hollywood soundstage.

When legislators justify such traitorous behavior, it is time to require those elected and appointed bureaucrats that cannot pledge allegiance to our U.S. Constitution and founding principles as well as fulfill their oaths of office, should be immediately removed from office. This includes federal, state and local officials as well as judges. The new democrats will never comprehend this concept as they continually demonstrate they have no honor, and their fundamental principle requires that in order to create and maintain their power it's acceptable to lie and cheat. From the Democratic Socialists refusing to pass the SAVE Act or fund our national security to insisting that foreign terrorists and criminals should not be prosecuted for crimes against American citizens, they are destroying our nation a little more every day.

Why "Medicare For All" Makes Sense

Dear Editor:

A while ago, I saw a news story about a member of Congress holding a townhall meeting and being asked about his position on a government-managed, universal healthcare system, sometimes referred to as "Medicare For All". He immediately replied, "We can't afford it." That reply is completely untrue. In fact, such a system would greatly reduce the amount of money America spends on healthcare. Here are the facts.

To begin, the United States is the only wealthy country that does not guarantee health coverage to all residents, whether through a single-payer system or a tightly regulated multi-payer system. (We are also the only country that allows healthcare expenses to bankrupt people.) These universal healthcare systems also control costs much more effectively than is done in the U.S. Data from the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD)* show that, in 2024, healthcare spending in the U.S. was about $14,880/person compared to about $9,000-$10,000/person in Switzerland, the country with the second highest per person spending. The average spending on healthcare in the 38 OECD countries was about $6,000/person, less than half of the U.S. amount.

Because America spends more per person on healthcare, it would be natural to think that the health outcomes in America would be better. Unfortunately, that is not the case. This chart compares 4 measures of healthcare outcomes for the U.S. and the OECD countries:

U.S. OECD avg.

Life expectancy, in years 78.4 81.1

Preventable & Treatable Deaths per 100,000 people 312 222

Maternal mortality; deaths per 100,000 births 22-23 3-10

Infant mortality; deaths per 1,000 live births 5.6 4.0

Plainly, the more expensive U.S. healthcare system provides poorer results for Americans. Why is this so?

The primary reason is the U.S. system has far higher administrative costs, not treatment costs. TIME magazine reports that, in the U.S., a total of $2,000-$2,500/person goes to administration every year compared to $500-$1,000/person in the OECD countries. Healthcare providers (doctors, hospitals, etc.) must have staff to deal with the complexity of multiple insurers and multiple plans with different billing rules. Insurers incur costs for advertising and for staff to deal with prior authorizations, billing disputes, and underwriting, while generating enough revenue to provide profits for investors. For private insurers, annual administrative spending is about $800-$1,200/person. Our government-administered Medicare program is much simpler, resulting in the comparable annual spending amount being only about $150-$300/person.

The experience of every other developed country shows that a universal healthcare system can reduce costs and improve health outcomes. However, there is no one system that works everywhere. Each country designs a system that works for them. As a Medicare participant, I pay part of the cost of my government-administered coverage plus the cost of a policy from a private insurer that supplements my Medicare coverage. This system seems to work well. I've never had a dispute regarding coverage nor have I been denied coverage.

Clearly, the amounts paid to providers under a universal healthcare system would have to increase beyond what Medicare currently pays and the costs would have to be distributed in a way that is affordable for everyone. But, we can improve the lives of every person in the United States and reduce the overall costs for healthcare by simplifying our system to focus our dollars on prevention and treatment, rather than on administration and profit.

We must not let elected representatives continue to get away with simply dismissing the idea of universal healthcare with a wave of a hand and "We can't afford it." Not only can we afford it, we can save money and improve the health of all Americans in the process. This is a win-win for everyone (except the health insurance companies): lower costs and better results. Remember this as the elections approach and vote for candidates that support universal healthcare.

Sheriff's Report- Administrative staff thanked

"This past Wednesday was Administrative Professionals Day. I'd like to give a shout out to ours here at the office. They are good at what they do, very professional, and always leave a positive experience with those in the public who has had contact with them at our office," said Van Buren County Sheriff Daniel Abbott.

Sgt. Weers assisted Michigan State Police on a domestic assault in Hartford Township. "The suspect fled on foot and was reported to be armed. Sgt. Weers put the drone up with the night vision activated and located the suspect prone out in a thick covered area. He was able to guide troopers to the area, and they gave commands to the suspect. He did obey the commands and walked out to the troopers, to which he was placed under arrest. Great teamwork once again," said Sheriff Abbott.

Deputies handled a be on the lookout (BOL) for a vehicle at a business in Almena Township that almost went over a retaining wall. Deputies located the vehicle in question, and while investigating the incident, the driver tried to leave. "Deputies were able to detain her so she couldn't and continue to investigate the situation. It was found she was intoxicated and had her three children in the car. She was lodged for the incident and now faces several charges. The children were turned over to (TOT) a grandparent. A huge shout out to the caller on this, you may have saved not only the childrens' lives, but others as well," said Sheriff Abbott.

"Our Victim Service Unit attended the Michigan Sheriff's Association 2026 Victim Advocate State Conference in Lansing this week. At the conference, there are a lot of topics that are covered to help them with their jobs here being an advocate. We are blessed in our county to have all the individuals who are part of our team here. They donate their time, assist numerous people and professionals throughout the year to help with different calls that take place. I personally cannot thank them enough for everything they do not only for the office, but for our community," said Sheriff Abbott.

"Just a reminder that "Road Closed" means just that. We consistently see drivers ignoring the signs, going around the barricades, etc. Keep in mind that you can be cited for driving through a closed road area. Deputies consistently hear when they stop vehicles for the violation "I do it all the time" or "I didn't think it was that big of deal." Our office works at times with the Van Buren County Road Commission to cite drivers for driving through a road closed area so keep that in mind. Also, it's not right drivers putting the VBCRC workers in danger," said Sheriff Abbott.

"Our Microchip event was a huge success at Animal Control. A total of 57 dogs were microchipped during the event. Thank yous go out to everyone who participated to make this happen and who were able to work it. Speaking of Animal Control, our Director Magen Spiece was asked to judge the photo contest held by VBDL in Lawrence. The theme was 'Pets and Animals.' She had a great time doing it and was honored to be asked to participate. Lastly, Animal Control was able to transfer 13 dogs to the Little Traverse Bay Humane Society. We are very grateful for all the partnerships across the state to help find dogs like these their forever homes," said Sheriff Abbott.

Deputies handled a single car crash on Interstate 94 highway, near the 63mm in Antwerp Township. "The driver lost control and went into several cable barriers. Deputies found that the driver had been drinking, hence, causing the crash. The driver was arrested for operating under the influence of alcohol with a high alcohol content," said Sheriff Abbott.

Deputies responded to a larceny in progress in Columbia Township. "The property owner found two people stealing items from his property, so he blocked in their vehicle until deputies could arrive," said Sheriff Abbott. Deputies arrested one of the suspects for larceny and trespassing.

$800,000 secured to replace structurally deficient bridge in Antwerp Township

State Rep. Pauline Wendzel announced Wednesday, April 22, she has secured $800,000 in the House budget for the total replacement of the structurally deficient bridge carrying County Road 657 over the East Branch of the Paw Paw River in Antwerp Township.

The bridge, located between 60th Avenue and 62nd Avenue, supports approximately 3,600 vehicles daily, including emergency vehicles, heavy agricultural transport, and local school buses. Following a routine inspection last year that revealed advanced deck deterioration, the Van Buren County Road Commission placed the structure under a 31-ton weight restriction. Without replacement, a full closure would force a six-mile detour for emergency vehicles, school buses, and the thousands of residents and farmers who depend on this route daily.

"The Van Buren County Road Commission came to me with a problem that wasn't going to fix itself," Rep. Wendzel said. "A failing bridge on a road that carries thousands of people every day. Farmers hauling crops, school buses full of kids, ambulances racing to calls, families just trying to get home. That's not a bridge you let fail. I took this fight to Lansing and secured the funding to replace it. The people of Antwerp Township depend on this bridge, and now they'll have one that's built to serve them for decades to come."

The current structure measures 19.5 feet, a half-foot short of the 20-foot minimum required to qualify for the Local Bridge Fund. That technicality has left the bridge ineligible for standard state and federal maintenance funding for its entire lifespan. The replacement structure will measure 21 feet, bringing it into the existing funding framework and eliminating the need for future special legislative appropriations.

"This funding is a gamechanger for Van Buren County," said Bret Witkowski, Managing Director of the Van Buren County Road Commission. "The current bridge has been an unexpected challenge for our budget, and closing it was never a viable option given the traffic volume and the impact on emergency response. Representative Wendzel went to bat for our community, and this investment will serve Van Buren County residents for decades to come."

Formal letters of support for the bridge replacement were submitted by the Van Buren County Board of Commissioners, Sheriff Daniel Abbott, the Lawton Fire Department, Van Buren Emergecny Medical Services (VBEMS), the Village of Mattawan, and the Van Buren Intermediate School District, reflecting the bridge's role in emergency response, student transportation, and the movement of agricultural goods across the county.

The funding was secured through the Legislative Directed Spending Initiative (LDSI) and is included in the House budget. The legislation now advances through the appropriations process.

Old restaurant with a new name in South Haven

By James Windell

The handwriting on the blackboard in the lobby of the Chalkboard Ktchen has one message: "What are you doing to change it up?"

That message is not for customers so much as it is intended for staff.

Change it up is what the new owners of the restaurant are telling the staff to internalize as a guiding behavior. It's an instruction that's supposed to shape how the team thinks and acts during service. It's about rebranding.

While you may not be familiar with the name Chalkboard Kitchen, it is a restaurant that has a history as a favorite eating spot for residents and tourists.

The restaurant began in 2001 as Phoenix Street Café on Phoenix Street and, after more than two decades as a local favorite, relocated in 2023 to Broadway Street with a new name –Phoenix Street on Broadway.

Rebranded again, this time as Chalkboard Kitchen, the restaurant has new owners and a new lease on life.

When Jay Marcoux recently decided to move away from running Phoneix on Broadway, his twin brother, Chad Marcoux, and Chef Allen Worman said they wanted to take it over.

Renaming it Chalkboard Kitchen, Chad Marcoux and Chef Allen wanted a new name to reflect the personal touch the two would bring to the restaurant. Besides the name change, the two have emphasized a new mindset for the staff: Change it up.

"Our tagline is Change it up," Marcoux said in a recent interview in the restaurant on a Thursday morning. "We want it to be more alive with kind and friendly staff. We want an atmosphere so that when guests come in here they will leave with a good feeling about their experience."

Why the name Chalkboard Kitchen?

Chad uses the analogy of a teacher to explain the new name. "It's like a teacher. You learn the lesson and the teacher erases the board and you go on to something new on the chalkboard," Marcoux explains. "We will have a changing, evolving menu."

"Having a rotating dinner menu, " he said, "is an example of changing it up."

When Chef Allen Worman joined the conversation, he said he has been trying to sell Chad and the staff on the idea that it will be casual and fine dining, but the specials will change.

Marcoux and Worman noted that when they had barbecue a couple of weeks ago, it went over so well they will do more barbecue specials in the future. "There's no other barbecue place in town, so here we are and we will be doing more of smoked meats," Marcoux said.

Both partners said that Chef Allen will also offer some of his specialty items, such as Italian food and salmon.

Both partners have been in the restaurant business for decades. Besdes being the chef at Phoenix Street Café and Phoenix on Broadway, Chef Allen has been chef at other restaurants. Chad Marcoux, who followed his family to South Haven more than 25 years ago, has been a manager at Café Julia, Phoenix Street Café and Phoenix on Broadway.

Chalkboard Kitchen, located at 259 Broadway, South Haven, will be open seven days a week beginning at 7:00 am until 2:00 pm for breakfast and lunch. They will be serving dinner on Fridays and Saturdays from 5:00 to 9:00 pm. It is recommended that you check their postings on Facebook and Instagram for the weekly dinner specials.

Gilmore Piano Festival Artist Elliot Wuu to present premiere performance in South Haven

Gilmore Piano Festival Artist Elliot Wuu to Present Premiere Performance in South Haven on May 9

SOUTH HAVEN – Continuing a tradition of presenting outstanding Gilmore Piano Festival artists, the South Haven Performance Series will begin its 2026 Series with a concert by award-winning pianist Elliot Wuu on Saturday, May 9.

Elliot Wuu

The concert will be hosted by Peace Lutheran Church, 06321 Blue Star Memorial Highway in South Haven beginning at 7 p.m.

"Our Performance Series has been privileged to be chosen by the Gilmore Festival as a site to feature their prestigious artists," said South Haven Performance Series President Bob Linstrom. "Our goal as a Series is to bring exemplary live classical style music to the South Haven community and I can't think of a better way to launch the 2026 season."

Pierre van der Westhuizen, Executive and Artistic Director with the Gilmore, shares Linstrom's enthusiasm. "We are thrilled to collaborate with the South Haven Performance Series to present Gilmore Young Artist Elliot Wuu as part of the 2026 Gilmore International Piano Festival," van der Westhuizen stated. "Elliot represents the extraordinary artistry and promise that defines the future of classical piano, and this partnership allows us to share that brilliance with even more communities. Opportunities like this deepen our mission to celebrate and support young artists while expanding the reach of the Festival. We are deeply grateful to everyone involved in making this concert possible in South Haven."

Praised for his "power, speed, and finesse of artists twice his age" (Tribune Star), Young Steinway Artist Elliot Wuu captivates audiences with his vibrant tone and emotional depth. Named a 2018 Gilmore Young Artist, Elliot has garnered top prizes in international competitions, including the Hilton Head International Piano Competition and the Yamaha and Bösendorfer USASU International Piano Competition. Most recently, he is a laureate of the 2025 American Pianists Awards.

Elliot has performed in major venues across the US, France, Italy, Germany, the UK, Poland, Romania, and China. His notable appearances include performances at Carnegie Hall, the United Nations Headquarters, WQXR's Greene Space in New York, and Fondation Louis Vuitton in Paris. Other notable concert performances include appearances at the Gilmore International Keyboard Festival, Aspen Festival, Ravinia Festival, La Jolla SummerFest, and many others. Additionally, he has been featured on WQXR's Young Artists Showcase, Performance Today and NPR's From the Top.

Born in Fremont, California, Elliot attended the San Francisco Conservatory Pre-College in high school. He went on to earn both his Bachelor and Master of Music degrees from The Juilliard School, where he studied with Robert McDonald as a recipient of the Kovner Fellowship. Elliot released his debut album with the Steinway and Sons label in the fall of 2025.

Founded in 2010, the South Haven Performance Series is an all-volunteer community-based organization committed to providing a rich mixture of musical arts for area residents and visitors. Most concerts are held during the spring and summer months with an additional holiday concert presented in December.

Performances are provided thanks to the generous support of the South Haven Community Foundation, corporate sponsors, and individual donors. A modest $15 admission fee is charged for the spring and summer concerts while the holiday concert is presented free of charge as a gift to the community. Students are always admitted free. Tickets are sold on the evening of the concert.

South Haven High School graduate making her mark in chamber music

By James Windell

Abigail Grabner, a 2023 graduate of South Haven High School, is a music education major with a string emphasis at Western Michigan University's Gilmore School of Music.

Earlier this month, Grabner's string quartet, in which she plays viola, performed as part of the Fontana Chamber Music Series in Kalamazoo.

To be selected to perform as part of the prestigious Fontana Chamber Series, Grabner's quartet had to enter a competition with other chamber groups on campus.

In a phone interview, she talked about that competition and about finding herself at Western Michigan University where she is a junior.

She said that the quartet that was chosen to play in the Fontana Chamber Series is made up of two violinists, a bassist, and herself on viola. "It's a really interesting quartet," she said, "because there's not a lot of music written for two violins, viola and bass. But we really wanted to make it work because we're all really good friends and we have really pushed each other to do our best."

After playing together for only about six months, they entered a chamber music competition at Western Michigan University. "Every year Western has a chamber competition where different groups from each area, such as strings, brass, and winds, come together and perform in front of the entire School of Music," she explained. "They choose a handful of the performers and those are the winners of the competition and they play in the Fontana Chamber Music series."

The music the quartet played was a Michael Haydn piece. "It was really interesting because there are barely any recordings of it, so it was really difficult piecing it together because we were not entirely sure what it should sound like. Also, because it was by Joseph Haydn's less famous younger brother."

Grabner began playing the viola at age 11. Although she doesn't come from a musical family, she says that she was always drawn to music. "From a very young age, I asked for a musical instrument," she says. "As soon as I was old enough, I joined the school orchestra."

She never took private lessons and everything she learned about playing the viola was learned at school. An important figure in her life was Jessica Fiedorowicz, who was her orchestra director from age 12, and who she says was a "constant for me."

"Mrs. Fiedorowicz was really, really supportive and pushed me to do my best," she says. "When I was growing up, music was a really big outlet for me and her classroom became my safe space. I knew she was someone I could trust." And Fiedorowicz recommended that she major in music in college.

"When I went to her and I told her I actually wanted to keep playing music for the rest of my life," Grabner says, "she started helping me choose a repertoire for auditions for college."

Besides her viola classes and her quartet, Grabner is part of the founding board for a new campus initiative – the Campus String Orchestra. Starting next fall, the Campus Orchestra will be run by music education majors and have an open invitation to all students interested in continuing to play in an orchestra while pursuing other career paths and majors.

"People noticed that there is only one orchestra at Western and it is incredibly hard to get into it," she says, "and that's especially true if you are not a music major. I could see that there are many students at Western who have an interest in playing in an orchestra. We thought we could develop an orchestra for those people and give them a place to play music and offer them more string experience before they go off in another direction. I am really very excited to be a part of this."

Although she says that being a music major at WMU has been difficult, she has overcome some of the barriers for her – such as not having a background in private viola lessons and not playing in youth orchestras. "Despite entering college as sort of an odd duck and feeling alienated initially, as the years have gone on, I've grown a lot and I've caught up," she says. "Now I feel like I really belong. I've made a lot of friends here and they are such wonderful people."

Abigail Grabner

Grabner is not sure what she will do when she graduates next year. "I know I will graduate and have a rectal at that time," she says. "After that, I have to decide if I want to go to grad school or if I will be heading straight into the work force. Either way, I will be incredibly excited and passionate about whatever choice I make."

National Day of Prayer being observed in South Haven

By James Windell

Perhaps at no time since the National Day of Prayer was established by act of Congress and signed into law by President Harry Truman in 1952 has our country been more in need of prayer.

According to John Lohrstorfer, a deacon at St. Basil Parish in South Haven, "The National Day of Prayer has deep roots in the history of the formation of our nation. During the revolutionary war, the Continental Congress issued a proclamation for fasting and prayer."

Later, Lohrstorfer explains, George Washington in 1779 declared a National Day of Prayer and fasting.

The National Day of Prayer takes place every first Thursday in May and this year the event will occur on May 7, 2026. Hosted by the South Haven Area Ministerial Alliance, a collective of churches and pastors in the South Haven area who are committed to working together for the betterment and support of our shared community, the day will be commemorated at noon on the lawn of City Hall.

As an annual observance in the U.S., Americans are encouraged to "turn to God in prayer and meditation." It is, in effect, a nationwide day set aside for people of all faith traditions to pray individually or in groups – at homes, houses of worship, public gatherings, or community events. It is not tied to any single religion, and participation is voluntary

"In South Haven, this observance has been going on for many years," says Lohrstorfer, "and this year we have representatives from the community who will offer prayers for our government, businesses and economy, for our police and law enforcement, for our education, for family and marriages, and for a continued spiritual renewal."

Lohrstorfer says that each year has a theme established by the National Day of Prayer Task Force.

This year, the 75th anniversary of the National Day of Prayer, the theme is drawn from 1 Chronicles 16:24: "Tell of His glory among the nations, His wonderful deeds among all the peoples."

The National Day of Prayer Task Force explains that the theme is intended to unite prayer gatherings nationwide and encourage believers to rededicate themselves and the nation to God.

BANGOR — The Bangor Vikings traveled to Lawton for a tough matchup and put in a strong effort but came up just short in a 1–0 loss.

Goalkeeper Solexey Calderon delivered an outstanding performance in net, recording 10 saves and keeping the Vikings in the game against a persistent Lawton attack.

"Despite the result, the team continues to show improvement with each match," coach Antonio Robles said.

Isabella Macedo led the attack with two goals, while Samantha Ogrodny added another to secure the win. Both Ogrodny and Macedo also recorded an assist each. In goal, Solexey Calderon came up big with three key saves to preserve the shutout.

" It was a great overall performance, especially from the defense, who worked hard to keep Comstock scoreless all night," Robles said.

The Lady Vikings followed that performance by traveling to Marcellus for another conference match and earning a 5–1 win over the Wildcats.

Andrea Barajas and Magdaly Gonzalez each scored two goals, while Isabella Macedo added one. Madison Lennox led the playmaking with two assists, and Andrea Barajas also contributed with an assist in a strong team performance.

The Vikings now move to 4–3 overall and remain undefeated in conference play at 4–0.

FLETCHERS POND, A UNIQUE FISHERY

Eric Payne with an bass caught and released

We discussed Hamlin Lake, Houghton Lake, Cadillac, and Lake Mitchell. For a total change of pace, anglers should consider Fletcher's Pond. Fletchers Pond is a unique body of water. This stump field-covered reservoir covers 9,000 acres.

The drawing card for many is the outstanding bass fishing. This is truly a remarkable bass fishery. A one-of-a-kind fishery. You need to look hard to find water that is much deeper than twelve or fourteen feet.

And you need a screw loose if you try to run wide open. Oh, I see guys doing it, but you really need to know the lake. I will take things much slower.

Bluegill fishing really grabbed my attention. This lake is chock full of gills. Now, this is not a lake where we catch tons of monster gills. In some seasons, we do extremely well with our keepers.

Some anglers use a pop can or a dollar bill as an indicator of a keeper. Folks, those two items average closer to 6 1/4 inches. We want nothing less than 7 or 7.5 inches.

Some years we load up on seven-and-a-quarter- to eight-and-a-quarter-inch fish. In other seasons, we struggle to catch an honest seven-inch fish. Just a preface warning.

Fletcher's Pond is made for a bobber. Bobbers provide a stealth approach. It keeps your bait exactly where you want it and is snag-resistant. I started using slip floats back when my kids were young. Slip floats are easy to cast and can be fished in any depth.

We use a glow-in-the-dark ice-fishing teardrop tipped with either a wax worm or a piece of a worm. If you want to get fancier, consider the following two ideas.

Cast a one-inch Charlie Brewer Grub on a 1/64-ounce jig head. This petite presentation glides around and over the stumps efficiently. Casting a mini homemade worm harness rig is fun, exciting, and very productive. We tie up our harness rigs with either two size-eight hooks or two size-ten hooks. We space a half inch apart. This rig is really fun to cast, and yes, on occasion, you will snag up.

Bass rarely disappoints us. Plenty of them and enough eighteen-to-twenty-inch fish to keep things exciting. A friend of mine fishes here one week each season. He lands numerous bass over five pounds each vacation. He excels at flipping a jig and a pig.

I love throwing a spinnerbait. I rarely lose a spinner because when we fish shallow water, it's rarely down more than a foot. When we fish the edge of the channel or the one major drop-off or break line, we vary the time we allow the spinner to sink.

My second go-to bass bait would be the Charlie Brewer three-inch grub. We fish this on the original Charlie Brewer jighead. This is a near weedless presentation and works equally well around the stumps and along the river channel.

Each day, we spend some time searching out the crappie. Success varies from day to day. When we find them, we do well. Thus, the reason is a fill-in option.

When fishing, crappies are my first love. There is something magical about casting a small jig and feeling a light tap-tap as a crappie sucks it in. Hands down, my favorite all-time jig is the Brewer Crappie Slider Head and the Brewer Crappie Grub.

With this set-up, you can duplicate almost to the "T" what a swimming minnow looks like. Yellow, Chartreuse, and the Blue Ice with the Chartreuse tail are our favorites. Keep moving until a school is found, and then camp out and work the school.

Fletchers are full of pike. They run from dinky fish to some real nice fish. Only two lures are needed. The bass spinnerbaits and the Johnson Silver Minnow Spoon. Tip the spoon with a three-inch action tail from Charlie Brewer.

Jack's Landing is where we stay. They offer both cabins, duplexes, and a campground. They have a dandy tackle shop, and plenty of dock space. And the Speakeasy tavern is really cool. Remember to stop in at Bob's Gun and Tackle Shop before heading north.

Lawton soccer girls win

By John Raffel
Correspondent

LAWTON — Lawton opened its girls homestand Wednesday night at Packer Field, defeating Constantine 4-1 in what assistant coach JD Boothby said was "a dominant performance from start to finish.

"The Blue Devils controlled the pace early and never let up, using relentless pressure on both ends of the field to keep Constantine on its heels throughout the match. Freshman Maddie Vette led the offensive charge with two goals, continuing her strong debut season. Junior Jaelyn Auton and senior Maya Tag each added a goal to round out the scoring," Boothby reported.

"Lawton's attack was fueled by strong playmaking in the midfield, highlighted by junior Lilleonah Mandujano's two assists. Auton and Allyson French also contributed assists, helping create consistent scoring opportunities. Defensively, the Blue Devils were just as sharp. Seniors Taylor Whipple and Karen Laviolette, along with freshman Amelia Benavidez, anchored a back line that limited Constantine's chances all night. Sophomore goalkeeper Lila Karsen turned in an outstanding performance in net, with the only goal allowed coming on a penalty kick."

Boothy by added: "With strong possession and a high-energy press, Lawton dictated the game from start to finish, earning a well-rounded team victory to kick off a four-game homestand."

The team also collected several personal bests, including Kaylin Leyva and Lucy Patlan in the 200 meters, Alex Strauch in the 400, Nadia Brzost in the discus, and Evelyn Waite in the shot put.

"On the boys side, senior throwers delivered two podium results. Alexander Gardner took first in the shot put, while Parker Kelson-Johnson placed second in the discus. The boys also posted a strong list of personal-best performances throughout the track events. Andon Offord recorded a personal best (PB) in the 100 meters, while Colton Anders and Christian Barboza-Gutierrez added PBs in the 200.
